SHALL THE STATE BE RE-DISTRICTED?

Congress having re-adjusted the apportionment of its members among the several States under the recent census, increasing the number in some of the States and decreasing them in others; and as our own State is numbered among the former, the inquiry as what action she will take, seems to be pertinent.

It is true the bill provides that "when the increase is confined to one member only, that he shall be admitted from the State at large; but does not provide for the admission of any greater number by this method.

By the indifference or non-action of our present Legislature in not re-districting the State as provided by the Constitution—and especially so now since Congress has reapportioned its own members—may lead to complications of a more serious character than the mere cost of an extra session.

By Section 3, Article IV of the Constitution it is provided that "For the purpose of choosing members of The Legislature of the State shall be divided into forty Senatorial and eighty Assembly districts," and that "each Senatorial district shall choose one Senator, and each Assembly district shall choose one member of the Assembly," which districts shall be numbered in their order, "commencing at the northern boundary of the State, and ending at the southern boundary thereof." * * * "And the Legislature shall at its first session after each census adjust such districts and re-apportion the representation so as to preserve them as nearly equal in population as may be."

Nothing is clearer to our mind than that it is the duty of the present Legislature to re-district the State in accordance with the foregoing provisions of the Constitution; and this position is reinforced by Sec. 22 of Article 1, where it expressly declares that "The provisions of this Constitution are mandatory and prohibitory," so that a neglect or failure by the Legislature to re-district the State in accordance with these provisions is a violation of the oath of office of its members, and of their obligation to the people.

To be entirely fair in our constitutional references; we will state that section six, above referred to, also provides that "until such districting as herein provided for shall be made, Senators and Assemblymen shall be elected by the districts according to the apportionment now provided by law."

We take it this provision, by the most natural inference, refers to the present body, and to any vacancies that might occur therein; otherwise an obstinate party might delay or put off the apportionment for years. And we are not without the best of reasons for so thinking; drawn from the action and debates of Representatives from districts who would lose by a readjustment.

On the other hand, districts who gain by a reapportionment, suffer an injustice by this neglect to reapportion, by want of their due representation in the law-making body of the State.

Again; suppose a Legislature elected by the old districts should pass some law affecting the property or personal rights of some individual, would he not most naturally inquire, as he would have a right to, of the court attempting to enforce such an act, whether the body passing it was a constitutional or revolutionary body?

We are for economy in all matters of public concern, but there are so many ugly questions hedging about this matter of reapportionment that we think it the duty by constitutional mandate of the present Legislature to reapportion the State; and the Governor should not hesitate to call it together for that purpose. This course would save all questions about the admission of our present incumbent member in Congress; and all laws passed by our next Legislature as a constitutional body.

MISSIONARY WORK WANTED.

It is certainly lamentable that our Eastern humanitarians cannot look upon the Chinese question as do the people of the Pacific Slope, or in other words in the light of reason. When our Eastern friends make their mistake in so supposing the people of California are disposed to oppress and degrade by which they Mongolian inhabitants. Such a supposition is far from the truth. In our own city no class of people is treated have greater immunity from bad treatment than have our Chinese workmen. They receive the fullest protection of the police and courts, and have no difficulty in obtaining any required legal aid when needed. They pursue their various avocations without let or hindrance, and so far as business is concerned stand upon an equality with the most favored natives. Their industry and sobriety recommended them for laborers and servants, and so far they are desirable adjuncts to a country. This we can frankly admit to our Eastern friends, but while we say this we also say emphatically they are not desirable as citizens, and their importation should be stopped. They are not of our faith and cannot be. They are not of the kind to associate with our institutions. Their habits and manners are peculiar to them and make them objectionable as citizens and neighbors. They take the place of laborers and mechanics, who, but for the presence of the Mongolians, would populate our towns and contribute to all the institutions of society, social as well as commercial. It is a fact, and well proven, that white labor, if brought in competition with the Mongolian, must go down to the same style of living and the same rate of wages. There is no alternative from this result, and from it every man and woman who feels the sympathies of humanity for its race kind turn with abhorrence. And to save our laborers and their families from such degradation is the opposition to the Mongolian based.

Probably much of the prejudice against us in Eastern minds is to be attributed to the Kearney crusade, and it will take us long to overcome the idea that the foul-mouthed fellow was instrumental in spreading abroad. Better tempered men are always get ance now in the lead, and it is hoped some capable man may be found who will assume the missionary role, and go East and preach the gospel of humanity vs. Chinamen to our brethren loving Eastern friends.

HOW THEY DO IT.

The wire-pullers of the Democracy have ever been celebrated for their readiness in inventing Munchausens. They generally begin a campaign and continue through it so fabrications. We can hardly remember a day when they did not assert they could carry every election, and always have the people with them! And now we think of it, it is a long while since victory perched upon their banners. Such events have become ancient history to us. But still they ply their trade of fabrication and misrepresentation. One year it is a "Rebellock" and then an ingeniously woven tale of "fraud," and then again a forged letter, and lastly they set up a yell simultaneously throughout our coast that every last Republican is going to vote the Democratic ticket because the President of the United States sent back to Congress a bill with his objections noted therein. This yarn beats any Hoorback or Money letter ever invented, and is as far from the truth as any man ever wandered, excepting when editing a Democratic organ. The statement would be amusing were it not so flat. But if our esteemed contemporary of the Democratic leanings can find amusement in feeding his readers on such thin diet, he is at liberty to do so, and we will not waste an effort in trying to shame him for the publication of such shameless fabrications.

THE Pacific Coast Senators are not idle at Washington. Senators Miller and Farley have each introduced Chinese Immigration Bills similar to the one vetoed, but reducing the term of years for which immigration is suspended. Miller's bill contemplates ten years, and Farley's sixteen years. They evidently intend to do all in their power to accomplish the work of protecting the Pacific Coast from the inroads of the Chinese, and as Senator Miller expresses it, if they can not get what they think is right they will take what they can get. There is, however, little or nothing to hope for, as it is evident that the President will not sign any bill that would be of real benefit in the case.

D. J. MURPHY, the attorney shot in the neck by Officer Maroney, of the San Francisco police, has entirely recovered from the effect of his wound and resumed his law practice, appearing again in the Dullivan case, which he was trying when shot.

OMAHA is now agitating the electric light matter. The City Council has appointed a committee to investigate and hunt up facts and figures regarding the practicability of using the electric light.

THE WEATHER.

The clouds and the air betoken more rain, and we are reminded of two years ago when this month gave us better than five inches and a half of rain, and we begin to think some friends of our may be wiser in rain lore than our wisdom man in prophesying a flood. Well, if it comes "Darkie is willing," and the corn-growers will smile. No heavy rainfall at this stage of the crops can do any material damage, as little of it has attained sufficient growth to be in danger of lodging, and none has arrived at the point of liability to rust. More and abundant rains will insure a corn crop of immense proportions, and so cure is converted into park it will be of great value to the country.

THE Postoffice Appropriation bill provides $150,000 for increase of clerk service in postoffices. Los Angeles should get a liberal portion of that sum, as the allowance is by no means equal to the requirements of this office. There should be one or two extra clerks employed in the office, and the pay of those already employed should be increased

UNDER a law passed by the last Nebraska Legislature, the Omaha Bee says women are allowed to vote for members of the Board of Education, and the law makers very discreetly refused to subject them to the important questions which Registrars put to men.

Boston Excursion Party.

Raymond's excursion party, consisting of about one hundred and fifty persons, will leave Boston this morning, and arrive in Los Angeles on the 27th instant. They will stop at all prominent points along the route, and enjoy themselves by sight-seeing. They are traveling in palace cars, and intend stopping in this city about five days.

THE STATE JUTE FACTORY.

Its Formal Opening Yesterday at San Quentin.

The State Penitentiary of the jute factory in the San Quentin prison took place yesterday, although the machinery was not in motion about a week since. A number of prominent citizens were present, who viewed with satisfaction the successful inauguration of the new industry. At present there are 115 convicts at work, besides four skilled foremen and 24 freemen. These latter are employed to instruct the men under them in the special work they are assigned to. The Warden explained to his visitors yesterday that for the present he is compelled to employ a few Chinese, since he can find no other men in the prison who understand the work sufficiently to take charge of any department. But as soon as he can judiciously do so, he will discharge these Chinese and put in American and Spanish boys. His object in doing this is to teach the younger convicts a trade that will be useful and profitable to them after their terms have expired.

"At this trade," said the warden, "these young men are always get ment, for there are very few spinners in this State, and those who do know anything about the work are principally Chinamen. Indeed, there are a few skilled spinners that I have offered a premium for them, and as yet have failed to get any. In a very short time, when those whom I have in here have learned the work, I intend to increase the working force to 400, and then we will run up to the full capacity, 50,000 sacks a day."

"At what do you estimate the profits of this factory?" asked a reporter who was present.

"The amount of the pay-roll of the 400 men at a dollar a day each would amount to $144,000 a year. Making a fair allowance for expenses I think the profits will amount to about $700,000 per annum."

The men employed at the looms and other machinery seem to take to their work with a zest, and rather enjoy the change from the brick yard, harness shop or tannery. The place is well protected against fire, fifty feet of hose facing fixed at a reasonable distance all over the building, while 150 water buckets are ready for handling at a moment's notice.—San Francisco Chronicle, April 4th.

Wilde at San Jose.

The San Jose Mercury has the following description of Oscar Wilde's personal appearance at his recent lecture in that city:

"Stately no stranger being ever presented himself to such an audience. At 8:15 o'clock last evening, as he stepped out from behind the scenes and moved quickly to the front of the stage, a burst of laughter fluttered over the house for an instant, quickly subsiding into silent astonishment. For before them stood a most grotesque, boyish-looking young man, whose dress may have been modelled after that of dead and gone authors of some forgotten age, but which was, nevertheless, the most atrociously ugly suit of wearing apparel that could well be devised by man—a suit of dark velvet, with a sombre suggestiveness of having been buried for a century or more. The odd cut of the coat and the attenuated extremities of the trousers added to his ludicrous appearance. Oscar Wilde has been so often described by the journalistic pen that it would be almost superfluous to add another description to the list. Yet the impression he creates upon the journalistic mind differs greatly with different writers. To begin with his dress, it has already been said that he wore a dark velvet suit. The coat was rounded and short, the vest exposed a liberal area of shirt-front, and the knee breeches met a pair of thin black stockings, through which showed another pair of white ones. The generous feet—generous in size—were encased in low shoes, ornamented with a large silver buckle. A white choker was tied in a large bow on his shirt-front. Below this gleamed a jewel. His long hair fell to his shoulders, almost obscuring his ears, and having a dull, lack-lustre, tangled appearance, which, in another room, might have indicated a total unacquaintance with oil, water, brush or comb.

The Denver Tribune has discovered the occasion of the recent labor strikes in Omaha. It says: "It was transpires that Denis Kearney instigated the recent labor trouble at Omaha. This emanates Mr. E. Rosewater, the nihilist editor of the Omaha Bee, on account of whom Editor Miller, of the Herald, has been wearing steel plated corsets and sheet iron pants for the past seven years."

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES

Senators Miller and Farley Each Introduce Immigration Bills.

Inquest on Jesse James' Body—His Mother Goes for Land, the Informer—Sargent on the Veto.

Associated Press Dispatches.]

WASHINGTON, April 5.—Senator Miller has introduced another Chinese bill the same as that vetoed, except that it provides for the suspension of immigration for ten years. He says he expects other modifications to be made in the Committee, with the view of making the bill conform as nearly as practicable to the President's views as is outlined in his veto. Miller says the opponents of Chinese immigration will press the new bill with vigor, hoping to pass it at once and to obtain the President's signature. He says if the Pacific Coast people now, that if they can't get what they think is right and what they want, they will accept the best law they can get. There is an impression that the President will approve a bill that will suspend immigration only ten years, but nobody seems able to state how it originated. There is no good authority which assumes to have heard the President say so, and some members of Congress who supported the veto bill, express doubt as to the President's approval of the ten years' bill. They say there is nothing in his veto to indicate his willingness to approve such a measure, but upon the impression that he might do so, the bill containing a ten years' suspension has been introduced.

FARLEY INTRODUCES A 16 YEAR BILL.

Senator Farley has prepared a bill to restrict Chinese immigration, which he will introduce to-day. It is the same as the vetoed bill, except that it suspends Chinese immigration for sixteen instead of twenty years. Farley's motive in taking up the Chinese bill was adopted by a vote of twenty-nine to twenty-five. Conover of Wisconsin, Miller of California and Jones of Nevada, voted with the Democrats to take the bill up.

NO CHANCE FOR THE OLD BILL.

Friends of the vetoed bill admit that there is no chance to pass the bill over the President's veto in the Senate, and they will endeavor to have Miller's bill referred to the Foreign Relations Committee with a view of having another bill agreed upon and reported as soon as possible.

TELLER AND CHANDLER EXPECTING.

It is stated with positive confidence that Teller's nomination for Secretary of the Interior, and Chandler's for Secretary of the Navy, will be made to-day. Chandler called at the White House this morning by invitation.

FROM KANSAS CITY.

Disposition of Jesse James' Body—The Inquest.

KANSAS CITY, April 5.—Governor Crittenden was in the city to-day and stated that Jesse James' body would not be sent from St. Joseph until a party of five sent from here to recognize it officially, had made their report. The remains will be taken from St. Joseph to-morrow to Kearney, Mo., near which place the mother of the deceased lives, and buried there. The Governor has not yet decided what will be done with Ford, the slayer of James, nor has he determined where the $10,000 reward offered for the body of Jesse James, dead or alive, will be given. The inquest was held at St. Joe this morning, and the verdict was that Jesse James came to his death at the hands of Robert Ford. Mrs. Samuels, the mother of Jesse, identified the remains as those of her son. She met Dick Little, the member of the gang who gave information to the officers as to the whereabouts of the leader, and called him a traitor and a coward.

THE LATTER DENIES THE CHARGE.

The Conference of the Latter Day Saints convene to-morrow at Independence, this State. Over 300 delegates from all parts of the country will be in attendance.

MINISTER SARGENT AT TUCSON.

He Expresses His Views of the Veto in Plain Terms.

TUCSON, A. T., April 5.—A. A. Sargent, family and friends passed through Tucson this morning en route east. On their arrival they were met by a number of citizens and were treated the freedom of the city by the Mayor and City Council, which time prevented them from accepting Moore, W. H. Hooper & Co. had a sumptuous breakfast spread for them at Parker's hotel, after partaking of which they were driven through the city, accompanied by Judge Charles Sil-ot. The train was held by the Southern Pacific railroad for an hour to give the party an opportunity to look around. Senator Sargent expressed himself much impressed with the size and importance of Tucson, and regretted that he could remain over for the day. A Star reporter interviewed the Senator on the President's veto of the Chinese Bill. He showed

GREAT CHAGRIN

At the President's action and felt deeply concerned as to the effect the veto would have upon the Pacific Coast. He said it was a severe blow on the Republican party. The battle had just begun, and that the Pacific Coast would be solid irrespective of party and force the issue. In regard to the reasons assigned for the veto, he stated they were most trivial, and he was sure the President allowed himself to be carried away by New England sentiment, and that he ought to have been governed by the representatives of the Pacific Coast and people and not by crazy humanitarians; that if he were now in Congress he would immediately introduce and advocate a bill to appropriate sufficient money to

REMOVE ALL THE CHINAMEN

From California to the Eastern States, and distribute them among their friends. He doubted very much the ability of Congress to pass the bill over the veto, as the action of the President would have a tendency to weaken the majority, but he hoped the effort to pass the bill would be made, and he believed it would. A number of personal friends of the Senator who were present say they have never known him to be so much excited over any public question as he was this morning. The sentiment here is universally condemnatory of the veto.
