Fine Base-ball Game at Stockton.

The Sacramentos Encounter a Waterloo at San Francisco.

Arizona Officers Hopeful of Capturing Train-robbers.

Rev. Sam Jones Constitutes His Labors at San Francisco—Portland Dazzled by a Wonderful Meteor, Etc.

By Telegraph to The Times.

STOCKTON, March 31.—[By the Associated Press.] The Stockton defeated the San Francisco this afternoon in a full game. Batteries—Stockton, Sweeney and Fred Gosling; San Francisco, Hughes and Fisher. Time, 1:50. The San Francisco got an unearned run in the seventh through an error of Sweeney in failing to hold a ball thrown by Hughes. Sweeney hit a nice work with a single and two two-baggers. The San Francisco seemed unable to hit Hughes safely, and got only five base hits. Delinger's timely error in the seventh, and not a base was stolen on him.

Score: Stockton, 2; San Francisco, 1.

SACRAMENTO'S WATERLOO.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—The Sacramento baseball team made its first appearance at the Haight-street grounds today, and made a very poor showing, as the following score will show: Oakland, 17; Sacramentos, 6.

THE RACES.

Meeting of the San Jose Blood Horse Association.

SAN JOSE, March 31.—[By the Associated Press.] The first day of the inaugural meeting of the San José Blood Horse Association brought a large crowd of sports-men. Entries were yesterday from all parts of the State.

Introduction stakes, five furlongs, won by Geraldine, Wilds Coad second, Al Farrow third. Time, 1:06.

Verdina stakes, for 2-year-olds, seven furlongs, Geoffrey won, Prentiss second, Glen Elton third. Time, 1:30½.

One-mile sweepstake, Monet won, Laura Glenn second, Jack Benny third. Time, 1:47.

Four furlongs, 3-year-olds, Filsy won, Guido second, Burton third. Time, 56½.

Selling race, 3-year-olds and upwards, Lady Miller won, Lizzie Lorent second, Lady Hawk third. Time, 1:16.

TRAIN-ROBBERS.

Arizona Officers Think They Have Located a Band.

ALBUQUERQUE (N. M.), March 31.—[By the Associated Press.] This morning news reached this place that four robbers who held up the Atlantic and Pacific passenger train at Canada Diablo, Ariz., had been located. A Special Officer Hinton located two of them at Winslow, Ariz., on Wednesday, five miles north of Winslow.

Another party of officers locating the other two near Chevo Pass, about thirty-five miles from Winslow. The robbers' horses had given out, and they were compelled to stop for a rest.

Deputy Sheriff Hart from Winslow brought the news here, and the capture of the band is almost certain.

A DAZZLER.

The Remarkable Meteor That Portland People Saw.

PORTLAND (Or.), March 31.—[By the Associated Press.] Shortly after 9 o'clock tonight the heavens were lit up by one of the most magnificent meteors ever seen in this city. The meteor was first seen at a point about 30° southeast of the zenith, and, moving in a northwesterly direction, it burst into smoking a point 10° from the horizon. It was visible for about 15 seconds. While moving myriads of stars were whirled off like rockets, making most beautiful Celestial fireworks. Its brilliancy was so intense that windows were cast within 30 feet of electric lights.

Deposition to Get Thirty Pay.

SAN RAFAEL, March 31.—Last January the Board of Supervisors allowed deputies for the offices of County Clerk, Auditor and Recorder at a salary of $60 per month. Supervisor Babcock filed a protest against the allowance, and refused to draw his warrant and also against the payment of the same by the Treasurer. The Auditor disregarded his protest, but the Treasurer refused payment of the same. A Will translator was appointed by the Court, and the validity of the warrants should not be good, and Judge Sullivan has rendered a decision in favor of the deputies.

Funeral of a Veteran.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—The funeral of Maj. Walter H. Holmes took place this afternoon from the Congregational Church. The interment was in Laurel Hill Cemetery. A large concourse of people followed the remains to the grave. Deceased was a native of Boston, Mass., and was a distinguished Civil War Commander of the Grand Army of the Republic at Portland, Me. He therefore has been very prominent in Grand Army and National Guard circles.

San Jose at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—Rev. Sam Jones closed his revival services in this city tonight. The pastors of the different denominations who have united with him in the meetings say that his work has been very successful.

MINERAL MONROVIA.

Another Report on the Ancient Gold Fields.

MONROVIA, March 30.—[Correspondence of The Times.] The existence of gold in the mountains near Monrovia has been known ever since 1853, and in 1860 a company was formed who worked several cañons with water brought from Saw Pit Cañon in ditches which are still to be seen. They are said to have obtained gold in quite large quantities, but owing to mismanagement or some other reason discontinued their operations. The traces of their work in the shape of large piles of rocks heaped up on the sides of several gulches are sufficiently extensive to show that they either met with considerable success or were blessed with a wonderful stock of hopefulness. Prospecting at present is being carried on by a Monrovia party, extending from a point near Sierra Madre Villa to the head of Sawpit, which was worked over to early times. There does not seem to have been much systematic work yet, and no one, as far as could be learned, had attempted to find bedrock, and all specimens discovered were from loose dirt near the surface. The lack of water is a great drawback to any one wishing to do work on the lower part of the flat, as there are only a very few small pools, and these are so constantly used by the working of the dirt to be attended with considerable difficulty. There seems to be but little doubt among men capable of judging that with capital sufficient to develop water at the mines, or bring it from San Gabriel Cañon or some other point, they could be worked with profit, with the richest considerable water to be found in the district.

Some of the mining experts who have been on the ground estimate the average value of the gravel from $00 to $00 per ton, while others, expert and otherwise, vary all the way from this down to $15 a ton.

The land is partly on the Bliss property, and the rest is Government land, but the former owners have a hopeful prospective, and about 40 claims are already staked out.

There is very little excitement, and although everyone agrees that there is gold there, the prevailing opinion is that there cannot be very much done until capital is secured to develop the necessary water, and all expressed a desire to see the ground and the centerest of the mines ought to be further investigated. The dirt which has been worked from the top on or near the surface of the ground, and when bedrock is reached more important developments may reasonably be looked for.

ANOTHER REPORT.

MONROVIA, March 31.—[Correspondence of The Times.] The gold find about a mile north and east of town is drawing many people from Pasadena and Los Angeles, and some gold, too, is being taken out.

There is no doubt that the placers could be worked with profit if water was more plenty.

It is reported a company has been formed to pipe water and push work.

TIE AND TRACK.

MAJ. WILKINS BIDS ADIEU TO LOS ANGELES.

A Probability That He Will Be Located in Mexico for the Santa Fe—The Exodus from the Northern Citrus Belt.

Saturday was Maj. Wilkins's last day with the Santa Fé Company in this city. His successor has not yet arrived, and will not be here before the 15th or 16th, but Mr. Wilkins gave up the office Saturday, and he and General Manager McCool will go to San Francisco for a few days. Maj. Wilkins was seen by a Times reporter the other day and questioned regarding his future movements, but he declined to talk, and said he did not know where he would go. The boys about the Phillips block are confident that he will go to Mexico for the Santa Fé Company.

Several of the leading bankers and merchants have done all in their power to keep Maj. Wilkins here, and have even gone so far as to send telegraphic dispatches to headquarters in the East asking the directors to reconsider their decision, but it is against railroad rules, and Maj. Wilkins will have to go.

THEIR LOSS BY THE STRIKE.

It is not at all wonderful that railroad men fear a strike as the direst fears holy water, when it is known that the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy, one of the bankrupting systems in the world, was earning $10,000 a mile last year by this cause. A reading of this matter in their annual report the directors say:

After many prosperous years the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy Company has experienced a year of serious reverses. After paying fixed charges, including $10,000,000 of interest on bonds, there was left for dividend out, upon the capital stock, $4,000,000. To show a deficiency for the year of $4,331,400, which it has been necessary to take from the accumulated surplus of the company. The principal cause of this result was the extensive strike of the employés of the railroad company in the winter of 1887-88, which involved from the operations of the road was the strike in February. This was the most costly strike on record. There had been a loss of traffic by other roads from a desire to rid themselves of what had been, for a long time, a difficult and irregular element among the railroads without the necessity of a strike, and the result of this intolerable nuisance has been to afford to nearly every road a chance to get rid of the men who, when it is hoped will be no more. It is to be hoped that the lesson thus understood will secure all the needs railroad laws are designed to remedy and we that it removes forever from the list of serious feature of the railroad situation in the United States—the making power, both national and State.

The increase in expenses during the year is due largely to the fact that we have operated an average of 6846 miles as against 6,000 miles in the previous year, or 846 miles more. A large part of the increase in expenses is due to the strike of the locomotive men, which developed a heavy part of the great machine, the task of reconstruction. The loss of traffic during the period of forced without allowing the carriage by using or because impaired. This increased and still involves extra expenses. To make the force equal to the task, in all respects is a matter of months, not of days.

HOTEL.

Col. Williamson Dunn will have charge of the freight and passenger department of the Santa Fé office here until Maj. Wilkins's successor arrives. Mr. Dunn has been in the employ of the company in the Coast for a number of years, and it is a well-known fact that he has been slated for the position for a long time.

Col. Dunn, Maj. Wilkins and Capt. McCool of the Santa Fé left for San Diego Saturday night. McCool and Wilkins will go to San Francisco by steamer.

C. W. Parkhurst and family of Indianapolis will arrive in a special car this evening. Mr. Parkhurst is a brother of Will Parkhurst, of this city. Mr. Parkhurst is one of the representatives of Indiana. He is president of the Ohio, Indiana and Western Railroad, and prominently identified with other railroad enterprises. He is also a prominent figure in Indiana politics, and led the Gresham forces in the late Republican convention. He is chairman of the Indiana Harrison Inaugural Committee. Mrs. Parkhurst is a member of the State Board of Charities. It is probable that William Henry Smith, of Chicago, manager of the Associated Press, is with the party, which will visit in Southern California for several days.

Yesterday saw the special fruit train of the Santa Fé arrive in the Santa Fé yards for Los Angeles. One consisted of 35 cars and the other 36. The beauty of it is that the cars are empty, and are making the return trip, having carried California fruit to the east a few weeks ago. It is the first time empty cars have been brought west, and goes to show that California is doing a better business with the east than ever before.

W. A. Bissell, general freight and passenger agent for the Santa Fé in San Francisco, was in Los Angeles yesterday on his way to Chicago.

The Weather.

SIGNAL OFFICE, LOS ANGELES, March 31, 4:47 P.M. The barometer registered 30.00 at 5 A.M. and 30.00 at 5 P.M. Temperature for corresponding periods, 52 and 70. Maximum temperature, 72; minimum, 48. Weather, clear.

A MODERN OLYMPUS.

THE CIVILIZATION OF THESE LATTER CENTURIES.

Olympian Deities—Neptune's Forgotten Loves—Doris and Her Fifty Daughters—The Charms of Sacro Heights—The Way Thereto—The Cliff House.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 31.—[Staff Correspondence of The Times.] I have taken up San Francisco as I would a new book since I have been here, and have sought to familiarize myself with its many different features of interest.

Yesterday I went out to the Cliff House, which stands perched upon the rocky sea wall, looking forever into the face of old ocean, alike to storm and in sunshine smiling upon the deep. We did not take the line which runs along the bluffs, but that had been constructed by a landslide, but taking the Haight-street car on Market street, we reached the dummy cars waiting at the depot which stands at the head of that line, entering which we were borne onward for some distance along the borders of Golden Gate Park. It is a pleasant route from the city, and it traverses green fields, winds among the hills, and finally, through thick bodies of eucalyptus trees, which have lately been planted with a view to the ornamentation of the park, we reached the Cliff House.

The wind was blowing cool and brisk in the city when we left it, and the sun had only just come out from behind its curtain of cloud and fog, where it had hidden during the almost two weeks of storm, but the air was still damp and chilly, and the fog continued clinging to the water and lighted up the broad verandahs of the Cliff House, where a good many strangers were sitting and enjoying the grand perspective. The great sea rocks were covered with sea lions, and they were evidently enjoying their siesta, lulled to sleep by the murmur of the light waves which broke upon the base of the rocks below them. Away to the north, the south and the west the ocean lay beautiful and calm, with the fog-banks hanging like a gauzy veil by the way.

Beyond the Cliff House is a wide, winding roadway leading over the hill, on one side of which is a royal length of bushes, long grasses and occasional trees. On the other is a high fence formed of slender pickets with narrow openings. The fence is six feet high, and is supported by posts which are set in stone. We see glimpses of the grounds within, showing lovely narrow spaces, and it seems as if there were within but a great wilderness of forest trees and gleaming marble. But we keep on up the wilderness roadway till we reach the upper gate, and have a picture of Arcadian beauty meets our eyes. Thirty half-cultivated acres are within the inclosure. Broad, smooth roadways lead in every direction to every hand, guarded by all the gods of Grecian mythology, which in Olympus that we have studied, and are we indeed in the dwelling place of the gods? Here is Venus and Jove, and lovely Psyche with her butterfly wings. Here stands Summer in her soft, white, flowing robes, with her full sheaf of wheat, and Autumn, with her basket heaped with purple grapes and golden fruit, with direct love, ready to speed the fateful arrow. And here, giant-limbed and strong, stands Poseidon/Neptune bound to a rock for his heroic daring. Over the tree tops, here and there, is the green gleam of white hands. Between partel boughs is seen the face of fair nymph or goddess. Everywhere are the white forms of the gods and goddesses, and here are also the gods of flowers, and the fragrance of orchid blossoms. The trickling water drops make musical melody for the ear, while green lawns and the velvety, and the wide-spreading palms are full of tropical splendor. The growing plants are made to have speech, and from the bosom of hillocks the stones are brought of varied tones we read our fortunes, and the fate of the Olympian deities. Wandering down the walks we come upon great glass globes which mirror all the surrounding landscape. There are seats where we may rest and dream. There are walks that lead to groves of forest trees; there are winding ways bordered with beds of flowers; there are lakes where we may row, and there are shades where we may sit and dream. Pleasures are ready for feeling. Here is the sculptured figure of Punch and Judy stand ready for their exploits. Here in the center, set on the ocean of the words hallow would utter had they but language.

Toward the sea, about this summit, is a rock-bound canyon, guarded by the gods of old. Here stands Neptune with his trident, and here, in the midst of hundreds of feet below, is the blue expanse of ocean. The terraced mount on this side inaccessible. Neptune might moan his forces, but no mortal power could be made the front of this modern Olympus. Jupiter is enthroned above him, and Thalia is hanging his head. But Neptune is placed today where he can look down upon the fair daughters who have been his wives, and green, cool sea caves, and Neptune and his wife Amphitrite are the deities of their domain. Doris is enamored of the land, the rushing breeze, the waving boughs, and dancing shadows of moon upon heights.

And here stand Dawn and Night in story silence, but with faces that the gods would love, and snowy draperies falling like a cloud about them. Everywhere is embodied the wealth of myth-ology. Here is the nymph of the fountain, and Pan, and Syrinx is the fair daughter of Grecian splendor. Roman power—that age-wasted time when Olympian deities were brought to hold the empire of the universe. So plainly smiles Neptune below us perhaps he has forgotten all of his old loves, and has given his heart to the bliss which encircles him round, peopled with love-ers, and all whose feet he slumbers. Here is a place grand enough, and who can blame him?

But it is not the bright blue of the Mediterranean that lies beneath us. It is not the marble palaces of Rome that crown these sea-bathed hills. The "immortal gods," adored by Grecian and Roman empire, live now but in story or sculptured marble, and today the Olympian deities are but the creation of her calcareous, and whose stories are beheaded or grounded, is building on these ocean shores its grand cities and its nobler civilization which shall endure until the race of man passes into the immortal future.
