TREASURE ON THE BEACH.

W. R. Clark Still Digging for His Long-Buried Cash-Box.

THE SEARCHERS ARE ENCOURAGED.

Iron Caissons to Be Used in the Excavation—Chances of Emptying the Pacific Ocean—Old Landmarks Removed.

The search for the treasure box buried by W. R. Clark on the beach below the Cliff House in 1864 has been temporarily suspended.

Clark and his partners, Professor Schreiber and W. H. O'Connor, took seven laborers yesterday and set them to work digging in the excavation begun several days since. It was soon found that water and sand poured into the hole faster than the men could remove them. The pumping proved futile, and it was found impossible to go more until a device could be contrived to overcome the influx of water, or remove it rapidly.

The hole is now nine feet deep, and it is thought by Clark that now comparatively fast below the point already reached the box will be found. A long rod of steel was yesterday driven deep into the sand at the center of the excavation. When it struck the box it would be known, for then it would be found difficult to drive it further, nor would it be withdrawn. The point had entered a heavy, white sticky land pan, wood or possibly the box itself.

Before the rod had been driven down beside the first, but more gently. When an equal depth was reached it could be felt that the point of the rod impinged upon something harder than the sand.

The appearance of the searchers grows stronger, and they are now sanguine that the hidden treasure will be brought to light.

Clark and his associates propose to build a caisson or iron cabinet, which will stay on the bottom of the ocean, and in which the excavations may still be continued to some the bottom of the water from the bottom.

There's difficulty in passing the box across through submersion of several inches of water. When it is found it will be raised to low water mark. Lake and springs have been covered by the shifting sands. The very sand dunes have been changed in size and shape by the action of the winds and waves. It may be impossible to determine the place of the box with precision, except by use of such means as the submerged caisson.

The men at work are prepared to expend several hundred dollars in the quest, and will continue it indefinitely, or until the box and its contents are found. Should it not be found in the excavations, it is to the line of the sea Clark would fix with such directness as to make it possible to continue his search.

When he found it among wreckage from a vessel that was wrecked on the beach, as he also found wreckage, such as sawdust.

In those days there were squatters and other people living on the beach. Many of these would have been arrested. So he dragged the box to a convenient spot and buried it.

Constant digging will be done to avoid the filling of the hole already made, and it is thought, by the use of the caisson, that the excavations will be then prosecuted to finding a rich mass of gold coupons, or disappointed in the possession of what may be only an old tool chest.

Cuticura Remedies

It is one thing to claim to cure scrofulous humors, but quite another to do it. The forgoing brief extracts from unsolicited testimonials show what CUTICURA is doing every day. We earnestly desire all who suffer from torturing and disfiguring humors and diseases of the skin, scalp and blood, and who have lost faith in doctors and medicine, to make at least one trial of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. We believe these great cures of Scrofula are the most wonderful ever portrayed by medicine. No remedies ever compounded in the history of medicine have performed the miraculous cures daily made by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood and Skin PURIFIER, blood-tested, pure, rough, cheapest and only skin preventive by CUTICURA SOAP.

Doctors called it eczema or erysipelas. Cannot describe my sufferings. It would last about two weeks, then crust and crack. Bought CUTICURA REMEDIES; took seven bottles and made a permanent cure. God bless you. Lived here fifty-two years; am a druggist.

THOS. L. GRAY, Deserters, Morgan county, Ohio.

Scrofula developed on a boy six months old; five months later running sores covered his head and body. Hours offensive. Mother discouraged; sores worse; another year passed. Then CUTICURA cured. MRS. L. BOLLINGER, Ill.
