

Legal Decisions About Newspapers.
1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.
2. If subscribers wish their papers discontinued, publishers may continue to send them until charges are paid.
3. If subscribers refuse or neglect to take their papers from the office or place to which their names are sent, they are held responsible until they settle their bills and give due notice to discontinue.
4. If subscribers move to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible. Notice should always be given of the removal.
5. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the postoffice—whether directed to his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for the payment.
6. The Courts have decided that refusing to take a paper from the office, or removing and leaving it unattended for, is prima facie evidence of intentional fraud.

Colton is fearfully interested in the action of the San Bernardino City Trustees in the Button business, judging from the tone of the Semi-Tropic, which deliberately imputes infamous motives to the majority of the Board. Now, we would ask the Semi-Tropic, ask the people of San Bernardino one question. Has the Semi-Tropic, Colton or Mr. Button done as much for the people of San Bernardino as have Messrs. Brunn, Anderson, Burt and Ferris? Has Mr. Button any more interest in the prosperity of San Bernardino than John Anderson, or J. G. Burt, or I. R. Brunn, or F. T. Ferris? Is the Semi-Tropic a better friend to San Bernardino than any of these gentlemen? Who secured the location of the railroad depots, workshops and headquarters in San Bernardino? Mr. Button? The Semi-Tropic? Who effected the project of the new hotel? Did Mr. Button, or the Semi-Tropic? To whom do we owe the present splendid prosperity we are enjoying? To Mr. Button, or the Semi-Tropic, or to the gentlemen now being abused by the friends of Mr. Button, the gentleman who not so very long ago could not eulogize Colton without execrating San Bernardino. Now, understand us. We honestly want the Button franchise extended over the street from Base line to the end of the avenue. We even favor the entrance of the motor cars as far as Second street, in the interest of harmony and because we believe in the enterprise as Mr. Button's evinced. But we are against giving a monopoly of the streets to Mr. Button and his associates, if he has any.

A CITRUS GARDEN.

Redlands is rapidly coming to the front, or rather forging away ahead of the general front. The fact is that the whole Redlands section, including Liragonia, Crafon and the Barton benches, is the finest fruit land in Southern California. For the whole range of citrus fruits, but especially for the most profitable fruits, the orange and the raisin grape, this rich, red soil is the finest land in California. Again, the climatic conditions give the Redlands country advantages possessed by hardly any other section. No fogs, no mists, no frosts, no winds, no dust, a fine elevation—these are the features which give Redlands its acknowledged pre-eminence for fruit culture. Of course, Highlands enjoys similar advantages and so does that superb section still further West, along the base of the Arrowhead hills. This is the coming garden of the county; a land in which enhancement of values will not stop during this generation; a land in which a well-improved ten acre tract will be a small fortune to its fortunate owner in the near future. The enhancement in Redlands has already been marvelous and far more rapid than even that at Riverside, magical as that undeniably was. As an instance of the enhancement of property in Redlands, we may cite the sale of nine acres on the fifteenth of the present month, by Dr. R. F. Watrous to Mr. Owens, who sold out lately on Base Line, for the sum of $3,700, or at the rate of $411 per acre. And there are thousands of acres of this magnificent red land yet open to settlement, and with an unending and perpetual water right accompanying the sale of the land. Nor, considering the marvelous enhancement effected by even temporary improvements, are these lands held at high rates. On the contrary, the terms are reasonable.

The European cable despatches are as contradictory as if they were sent by two angry old maids, each seeking to discredit the other. One of last night's telegrams informed us that Russia would jump upon Austria, in the Spring, with an unexpected tiger's leap. Another says that Russia is breathing peace upon the basis of the Berlin Treaty. From the present aspect of affairs, peace seems impossible, because Bismarck, apparently, desires war. And he is right. Betwixt precipitate the inevitable, and force France into war at once, than for a poor country like Germany to await the gigantic preparations of a rich one like France. Money is the sinews of war, and Bismarck is probably exasperated beyond endurance at the cruel, crushing sacrifice which Germany is compelled to make to keep the peace with vastly richer France. If so, he is not to blame if he is maneuvering to force the hand of fate herself, and provoke the general dance before some of the would be waltzers are ready. Bismarck made the last war between France and Germany, compelling the invalid, decaying Napoleon to declare it. But France, by her mighty preparation, is making the coming war, not Bismarck, although he may choose to anticipate the French in commencing hostilities. While the giants are engaged, Austria and Russia will have an exceedingly interesting affair of their own in the East with England as a bottle holder.

SAN BERNARDINO will soon be headquarters for four important railroads—The California Southern, the San Bernardino and Los Angeles, the San Bernardino and East San Bernardino, and the San Bernardino and San Diego. This city will be the converging center of operations for all four roads. No wonder the Colton said that we were fairly well supplied with railroads already, although, of course, we would not object were we to be favored with four more. San Bernardino certainly owes a debt of profound gratitude to the California Southern. It has made us; made every man who owns property. And cities should be grateful as well as men. The principle is the same.

The California Southern railroad is daily giving tangible and strongly felt evidence of its friendship for San Bernardino. It has made this city virtually, may both nominally and actually, the center of its enormous railroad interests in California. San Bernardino is to-day the center of the operations of the California Southern, the San Bernardino & Los Angeles, the San Bernardino & East San Bernardino, and now of the San Bernardino & San Diego roads. Yet there are a few who would, on the principle of greed, cease to be grateful. SENATOR Stanford has taken to letter writing to the newspapers. This certainly disposes of his chances for the Presidential nomination—a chance for the Presidency he never had, never will have, never should have. Rockford watches in abundance at N. B. Bark Atlantic Goes to Pieces—Many Lives Lost.
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 17.—At 2.30 o'clock this morning the whaling bark Atlantic was driven ashore a mile and a half below the Cliff House, and went to pieces in a few minutes, not a spar remaining standing. The captain and mate, with a lighter and ten men were saved. Following is Captain Warren's statement of the wreck: "We were towed out to sea yesterday afternoon. There was heavy headwind and no wind. The currents were so strong that we could not get out of the swell. We let go both anchors, but the sea swept the decks and was so heavy that the anchors could not hold, and we dragged ashore and struck at 1.30 a. m. The men were being washed off during all this time by waves which dashed over us. The vessel went to pieces an hour and a half after she struck. There was very heavy fog and it was pitch dark. We succeeded in lowering two boats, but both capsized before getting two boat-lengths from the ship. The first boat contained H. S. Doty, first mate; Anton Perry, third mate, and four or five of the crew. That was the last we saw of them. In the second boat were myself, Second Mate King, and five men. When we were swamped the sea carried us in until we touched bottom, when we dragged ourselves ashore. During the time the ship remained together the life-saving crew shot a line over the wreck, but they could not pull the rope on board, because it became entangled with floating wreck. We made no signals of distress, as the fog was too dense for any to be seen. The captain and the crew numbered twenty-six persons; of these only ten were known to have been saved. The remainder is believed to have been drowned."

LATER.—Latest obtainable returns give the number of saved at eleven. Up to a late hour this afternoon but one body has been recovered. It was recognized as a man known as "French Joe." When the captain left the vessel she was still holding together, there was a great "beach" in the starboard side and the bowsprit had been carried away. It was high tide at the time and the force of the waves steadily drove the wreck towards the shore, and as soon as she reached the point where she struck ground, with the passage of each breaker she crumbled into pieces. All saved agree in stating that the vessel was so old and rotten that she was unfit for a whaling cruise. A rumor prevails in this city that a large portion of the crew were intoxicated at the time of the wreck, that twenty-five were down below sleeping off their intoxication.

If this is true, it is thought that a number of bodies will be found under the hull of the ship. It is also said there was $30,000 in coin on board. There is much doubt expressed as to the number of the crew on the ill-fated bark. When she left port yesterday, the custom house list shows 42 white males. The Captain states that there were but 38. The captain and pilots express the opinion that the arrival of night induced the captain of the tug which towed the vessel out, to part company with the whaler too soon, for they assert that as flood tide would set in strongly about 10 o'clock, the vessel should have been tugged to the automatic buoy, four miles further out, in order to get beyond the inshore sweep of the life saving station, says that the first knowledge he had of the disaster was when the captain and half a dozen men made their appearance at the station about two o'clock this morning. Rockets were thrown up from the beach as signals, but were useless as the fog was so thick. Finally, the wreck was located and endeavors made to rescue the men but to no avail. The sand along the beach was almost hidden from sight by the vast amount of wreckage strewn on it. One of the first persons to go to the scene of the disaster from this city, was Mr. J. J. Blakeney, Superintendent of the Life Saving Service of this district. When asked why the men at the station gave no assistance to the wrecked crew, he said it was very unfortunate, and no one regrets it more than we do. It is only fair to say that they did everything that men could do, but their efforts were utterly fruitless. Referring to the rottenness of the ship's timbers, he said: "It seems to me that a rigid and unparrying investigation should be ordered, and those responsible made an example of. Lives are too valuable to be jeopardized in such ships, and in my opinion this is little short of cold blooded murder."

Whaler Burned.
SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 17.—The steam whaler Mary and Helen, took fire this morning while lying off the works of the Pacific Oil Transportation Company at the Protrero, in the Southern part of the city. The fire communicated with the magazine of the vessel and an explosion followed, killing the son of Captain Miller and a deck hand, both of whom were on deck, and the vessel was badly damaged, the whole side being blown out.

The fire was caused by spontaneous combustion among box of waste in the fire room. The vessel was built in Bath, Me., and cost $75,000. She had on board $10,000 worth of stores, which were all destroyed. Insurance on vessel, $40,000. She was to have sailed to-morrow on a sperm whaling cruise in the South Pacific ocean.

Isn't this Just and Liberal?
You're sure to get from us an honest article and a low price.
No bargaining, haggling, disputing, beating down the price.
Is it such goods as you want? Are the style and quality and price satisfactory? That's your side of the house. Our's is to guarantee that Boots, Shoes and Men's Furnishing Goods, inside and outside are just and true.
We say to you, Have your friends and neighbors examine the goods, look them over thoroughly and carefully, inside and out, with most critical eyes, and even after you have paid your money, if you are dissatisfied for any reason, bring them back and get your money.
If there is anything more liberal than this, and fair, we would like to know it, and incorporate in our business in serving you.
