FUNG LEEN VS. CHAN LEE.

The First Chinese Divorce Suit Ever Filed on this Coast.

The first Chinese divorce suit ever recorded on this Coast was filed in the County Clerk's office yesterday. Fung Leen is the aggrieved party in this instance, and she seeks for a dislution of the bonds between herself and solution of the bonds between herself and Chan Lee on the ground that prior to their marriage in Sacramento in 1885, Chan had married another almond-eyed damsel who was still in existence at the time of the second ceremony. Furthermore, it is charged that the defendant deserted his second spouse not long ago. It is said by an attorney who knows something of the case that while Fung Leen's story may be correct, her real reason for seeking a separation is that she may wed another Chinaman whose personal attractions and bank account are greater than those of Chan Lee.

A DANGEROUS CRIMINAL.

McThomas Sentenced to Folsom for Thirty Years-His Crime.

"My God! That is worse than death!" roaned Thomas McThomas when Judge Toohy yesterday sentenced him to thirty years at Folsom for the brutal robbery of William Rebstock on Broadway and Stockton street. McThomas is a despicable wretch, and Judge Toohy in sentencing him was very

You are, without doubt, a confirmed criminal, and with your colleague you two constitute the worst pair of scoundrels that has ever come before me during my official experience. The crime of which you stand convicted was cold-blooded and diabolical. You tay in wait for your victim, and had he been a defenseless woman you would have murdered her to gain your end. Had Mr. Rebstock been atrong instead of weak and sick you would have killed him. Further, your relations with Brandon's sister should have long ago placed you in the power of the law, and if he had been any less a scoundrel than he is be would long ago have put an end to them. I am sorry that the District Attorney has withdrawn the prior conviction against you, for it would then have been in my power to place you beyond the power of doing further harm. As it is, the sentence of the Court is that you be imprisoned in Folsom for thirty years.

McThomas is a colored man, but his partner in the assault, Brandon, is a white man of good parentage. Brandon had to leave his home in New York for a nameless crime. His sister left with him. In this city the two went to the bottom depths of degradation, and finally the woman married McThomas by contract.

Brandon changed his plea to guilty, and will be sentenced Saturday.

ENTHUSIASTIC ORCHARDISTS.

They Are in Favor of Employing Boys for

In conversation with an ALTA reporter yes-terday afternoon, General Manager Brown, of the State Board of Trade, stated that over four hundred boys have already applied for posi-tions for picking fruit in the country, although the demand for their services as yet does not exceed three hundred. He expressed satisfaction at the result, and said that if accepted and acted upon, the plan would certainly result in great benefit to the State, giving tainly result in great benefit to the State, giving opportunities to the young to secure remunerative employment. The local Board of Trade of Sacramento has opened a roll for applicants at its headquarters, and already over eighty boys have registered for positions. Mr. Brown also stated that H. W. Meeks, an Alemeda county orchardist, has been experimenting with boys from Oakland during the past month, and is enthusiastic concerning them. Mr. Brown further stated that the Alemeda county orchardist informed him that ten boys en do more work in one week than fifteen county orchardist informed him that ten boys can do more work in one week than fifteen Chinamen can do in the same period. A number of other orchardists have also experimented with boys, and all have expressed themselves in favor of employing no more Chinamen, so satisfactorily do the white youngsters pick fruit. It is understood that John Bidwell of Chico will discharge his Chinamen and employ white boys for his harvest.

The meeting of the Executive Committee of the State Board of Trade, which was to have been held yesterday afternoon, has been postponed for two weeks.

W. D. English, the Chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, yesterday afternoon informed an ALTA reporter that there are a host of candidates for the vacant position, the more prominent among the number being Judge Armstrong of Sacramento and Judge Jeremiah F. Sullivan of this city, both of whom were defeated by Judge Niles Searls for the nomination of Supreme Justice at the late Democratic State Convention held in Los Angeles. Both Judges have a considerable number of friends on the State Central Committee, and it is more than probable that one of them will receive the nomination.

A rumor has been afloat during the past few days that Justice Temple, of the Supreme Court, intends resigning from the Bench, on account of sickness. W. D. English said he knew that Justice Temple was not feeling well, but he did not think his sickness was of such nature as to compel his retiring from the Bench.

Frankle White's Affidayit.

Frankie White's Affidavit.

A supplementary feature of the celebrated White divorce suit was developed yesterday in Judge Wilson's Court by George White's motion for an order granting him leave to mortgage sufficient real estate to enable him to pay his debts. Mrs. White's affidavit in opposition stated that the latter knew nothing of her husband's alleged indebtedness of $70,000, but that if it existed, he had purposely allowed it to accumulate with a view to diminishing her share in the event of a division of community property. She avers that his annual income ranges between $40,000 and $60,000. J. H. Riley, the Court stenographer, was appointed referee to decide upon the condition and value of White's property. mortgage sufficient real estate to enable him

AN ANNIVERSARY.

The California Market Attains Its Legal Majority.

FRUIT, FISH, MEAT AND GAME.

Fine Displays Made by Leading Dealers-A First-class Grocery-Foaming Lager and Like Refreshments.

To-day marks the twenty-first anniversary of the opening of the California Market, that well-known emporium from which come the viands that deck the tables of San Francisco's wealthiest and best-known residents. In the busy place all the requisites of the workman's simple meal or the millionaire's sumptuous panquet, with the exception of wines and pastry, may be found in endless variety and inexhaustible abundance. Probably no establishment of its kind in any other city of the Union is so widely patronized as is this vast deposit of the articles with which the citizens of San Francisco and the neighboring towns are fed. The most fastidious gastronomist are fed. The most fastidious gastronomist need not leave the market without finding his favorite dainty at a reasonable cost and of the finest quality. The building was erected in 1867, by A. E. Davis, on ground purchased from Trinity Church, the Golden Gate Mills, John F. Macauley, James de Fremery of the San Francisco Savings and Loan Society, and a number of private owners. The building has a frontage of 150 feet on California street and 206 feet on Pine street, and has also commodious side entrances from Kearny and Montgomery streets through wide, well-lighted alleys. The cost of the editice and the ground on which it was built was about half a million dollars. Fifteen years ago Mr. Davis retired, and the market passed into the hands of a local syndicate, who still retain it. Thomas Brown is still Superintendent, and manages by the exertion of a little tact to make the establishment resemble in all its workings some finely-contrived piece of mechanism. Under his supervision the market is in a flourishing condition. Not a stall is unoccupied. Those which on the opening day, twenty-one years ago, were sold at a premium are so sold still when one becomes vacant, which is seldom the case. While it would be no small piece of work to describe in detail all the stalls in the market, still, some of them, especially such as have been held by their present holders since the opening, on August 1, 1867, merit a brief mention in this connection. All of the dealers noticed have telephones in their stalls, and receive orders from all parts of the city and vicinity. need not leave the market without finding his

Robert F. Bunker.

This well-known perk packer and dealer in Californian, Eastern and foreign hams, smoked meats, sausages and similar articles, was for-merly connected with the old French Market, but took a stall in the California Market at its but took a stall in the California Market at its opening. Mr. Bunker is one of the few early merchants in his specialty whose trade has not fallen off, but rather increased with age. Among his customers are the principal hotels, and a large number of society people who are famed for their delicious breakfasts and suppers. At his stalls, Nos. 74 and 75, all those smoky looking delicious tasting tidbits, which the real epicure delights in, may be found at very reasonable rates.

M. B. Moraghan

The tasteful little restaurant presided over by this gentleman occupies the space of stalls 68, 69 and 70 and the opposite stalls 47 and 48, but it would seem hardly right to use the 48, but it would seem hardly right to use the word "stall" in connection with so elegant and neat a place. Mr. Moraghan's grand specialty is oysters of every kind, a fact well known to his many customers, among whom rank many society people, at whose receptions the delicious bivalve plays an important role. Since the market opened this genial gentleman has managed a steadily increasing wholesale and retail trade, and as he owns several magnificent oyster beds at Milbrae, San Mateo county, on which side of the bay all varieties of shellfish are fatter and more savory than in other places, he can sell his toothsome wares at prices independent of those dealers who buy from wholesalers. Mr. Moraghan is the only dealer in oysters who has been in the market since its opening, and, judging from the present outlook, he is likely to remain there for many years to come.

The crimson shield of the city of Berlin graces stalls 88, 89, 90 and 91, where Messrs. Asmann & Oesting, the leading importers of fancy smoked meats and foreign delicacies, expose their varied stock. The firm is one of expose their varied stock. The firm is one of the "pioneers" of the market, and before the year 1867 was a part of the house of Erzgraeber & Oesting. Among the many appetizing morsels sold by this popular firm are the celebrated Braunschweiger cervelat sausage, Pomeranian goose breasts, smoked and sour eels, smoked sardines in oil, Magdeburger sauerkraut and Dill pickles. The firm are also sole agents for the Lauenberg rye bread.

Lemoine & Pichor

This firm, successors to Messrs. Hart & Goodman, make a fine showing of poultry of every kind at stalls Nos. 76, 77 and 78. Their wild game is considerably in demand, and they nake a specialty of turkeys. The pigeons sold make a specialty of turkeys. The pigeons sold by this firm are considered by many good judges the best in the city, while their quails are caught only in places in the vicinity of farms, where the birds are likely to be most plump and tender. B. M. Fleischmann has been their business manager for the past sixteen years, and it would be hard to decide whether his genial courtesy or the excellence of the stock has been most effectual in advancing the business interests of the firm. ing the business interests of the firm.

J. H. McMenoms

bright red sides of beef coated with thick layers of creamy fat give to Mr. McMenomy's establishment, at stalls 7, 8 and 9, the aspect of a continental market on an s, the aspect of a continental market on an Easter Sunday, when the best and choicest meats are offered for sale to the hungry faithful, who have languished on fish and herbs for forty long days. A specialty of this place is the stall-fed beef reared by Mr. McMenomy at his yards on San Pablo avenue, Oakland, where his customers may go and see from what sort of food their tender steaks and roasts are produced. Mr. McMenomy is another pioneer merchant of the market.

Brown & Wells.

Stalls 30 and 31 contain a profusion of scar-let tomatoes, emerald artichokes, fruits of all colors and kinds, potatoes, cabbages, onions, the piquant garlic and all kindred accompaniments to the more solid viands of a first-class repast. Besides an unlimited assortment of native fruits and vegetables the firm does a most flourishing trade in tropical fruits and ranks in the list of its permanent customers many of the wealthy high-livers of the city. The house also supplies some of the principal hotels and fashionable boarding-houses.

Muller & Koenig.

Pork fresh and pork smoked, in various forms, is the main attraction at stalls 15 and 16, where Messrs. Muller & Koenig have all they 16, where Messrs. Muller & Koenig have all they can do to attend to the demands of their daily increasing list of patrons. One great specialty with the firm is pure clarified lard, which has an immense sale. The firm is not dependent upon wholesale dealers, but receives its stock directly from its large and well-known packing-house on Harrison street, near Eleventh, where many retail dealers are constant purchasers.

This successful beef and pork butcher occupies stalls 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99 and 100 quite a large space, but hardly sufficient to contain the immense stock which he is obliged to keep constantly on hand for his unceasing stream of customers. Every article in the meat line may be found at his place. His sucking pigs are pronounced perfection itself by those whose dictum is law in Epicurean circles. He also does an extensive trade in the best leaf lard and suct.

Point Reyes Dairy.

The Point Reyes and Holstein Dairy Company fill stalls 17, 18 and 19 with all the various products into which cow's milk can be made. The company act as agents for the dairy ranches of James MeM. Shafter, at Point Reyes. Marin county, and receive daily shipments of milk, cream, fresh and salt butter, buttermilk, cheese of all kinds, and eggs. The firm receives the patronage of a large number of regular customers, and is in every respect a most complete success.

Goldberg, Bowen & Co.

On leaving the market on the South-street side the visitor can hardly fail to be attracted by the Plate-glass windows of the leading grocery firm of Goldberg, Bowen & Co., Nos. 428 to 432 Pine street. To-day marks an anniversary for them also. Three years ago anniversary for them also. Three years ago the present firm commenced operations, and have succeeded in the most gratifying manner. The first year's sales of the new firm amounted to about $250,000, while those of the year just finished cannot fall short of $1,250,000, or five times as much. The cause for this phenomenal good fortune is not far to seek. The firm endeavor to supply their customers with the very best delicacies and groceries that can be obtained, though both hemispheres have to be searched to get them. A new feature is the cigar department, originally intended for the accommodation of regular patrons, but which, soon after its establishment, had to be enlarged, as the general public supplied a larger list of customers than had been anticipated. During the past year 2,500,000 cigars were sold, besides a corresponding number of cigarettes of the best foreign brands.

Max Vogelsang.

After an inspection of the many kinds of solid food displayed by the firms above mentioned, the male visitor begins to wonder where he can find some liquid refreshment other than he can find some liquid refreshment other than that kept in jealous bottles by the house last named. If he will pass once more through the market he will find at No. 515 California street the very thing he needs. Here jovial Max Vogelsang and a number of nimble and obliging assistants dispense the foaming lager, the ruby wine and the fiery aquardiente to thirsty humanity. The class of customers is refined and cultured. Here are ne fights, no drunkenness, no vulgar language. Beer of every kind is on hand, notably the Sierra lager, and a number of varieties of German importation. All these, as well as the celebrated Schlitz Milwaukee beer, will be on tap to-day. The establishment is much frequented by the leading business men in the middle of the day on account of the excellent hot lunch spread by the liberal Max. During the day and night the best cold lunch in the city is served at a trifling cost.

HE DID NOT DIE.

Daniel Goldberg Deeds Away His Property But Wants It Returned.

In a complaint filed yesterday in the Su-perior Court Daniel Goldberg charges his wife Emilie with having fraudulently and unlawfully induced him to convey to her a lot on the corner of Franklin and Hayes streets, which property represented the whole of Gold-berg's accumulations during the sixty-four berg's accumulations during the sixty-four years of his life. Goldberg avers that on June 29, 1888, he was in great bodily and mental distress by reason of a complication of physical ills and ailments, and that he fully believed he was about to die. While he was in this condition, he alleges, his wife continually and importunately requested him to transfer the said property to her by deed of gift, so that in case of his demise the expense of probating the estate might be avoided. She promised to deposit the document in the drawer of a bureau in the Goldberg residence, whence it should not be removed, either for recording or other purpose, until after the whence it should not be removed, either for recording or other purpose, until after the plaintiff's death. Goldberg executed the in-strument, but, as he now claims, the worldly wise Emilie secretly removed it from the said bureau drawer and had it recorded. Upon Goldberg's complete recovery soon there-after Emilie demanded possession. The plain-tiff, therefore, seeks a reconveyance.

JOHN M'NULTY'S TRIAL.

Insanity the Defense for Killing Collins.

John McNulty, the longshoreman accused of the murder of James Collins, was up before Judge Murphy yesterday for trial. Mc-Nulty's lawyer, J. N. E. Wilson, wanted to attend the Republican Convention, to which attend the Republican Convention, to which he was a delegate, and Judge Murphy therefore continued the trial till to-day. The defense will probably be that Collins' friends drove McNulty crazy by badgering and harassing him. This plea of insanity made some trouble in finding jurors who were not prejudiced against the insanity defense. The following jurors were selected: J. B. C. Morris, G. W. Conklin, E. E. Wenzel, Charles Hess, William Pomin, S. Waterman, B. C. Austin, William Manning, W. Fleischer, Geo. W. Morgan, C. A. Rand and M. J. Kast.

The Order in this State now has 727 members, the year showing an increase of 169; $8072 has been paid out for sick benefits to members, and $4320 to the widows and orphans of deceased members, leaving a cash balance on hand of $48,498 73, with the building furniture, etc., free of all debt.

A goat ran a muck on Kearny street vester day, to the consternation of pedestrians, and to the discomfiture of Policeman Johnson, who undertook to arrest him. They managed to arrive together at the City Prison after having had lots of fun with each other, to the intense delight of a gang of small boys. Everybody on the sidewalks gave the two promenaders the right of way. At the Prison there was an amateur circus in progress for about an hour before one of the officers on duty conceived the plan of enticing the goat with carrots into the Court area. The owner can have him by applying at the Prison.

A Fine Canadian Pacific Steamer With Over Four Hundred Chinese-Three Narrow Escapes.

To come upon a corpse suddenly and with-out warning is at all times calculated to strike dread to the heart of the average human biped. But when the corpse has attained the perfection of a mummy, produced by modern embalming processes, the shock may be still worse. Such an unlooked-for meeting between the living and the dead occurred yesterday at the living and the living at the living and the living and the living at the living and the living at the Broadway wharf. The steamer Mexico, which had arrived in the morning, was being discharged. Customs officials were there supervising things and poking their probes into the different articles as they came ashore. Among these articles was an oblong box of the most ordinary appearance, fastened with a lock of the most ordinary kind. Inspectors Ryan and Hagans distributed themselves around the case and probed. Something aroused their suspicions, and Ryan bent down to open the box. Hagans stood gazing down from his al-titude of six feet six, more or less. Ryan box. Hagans stood gazing down from his altitude of six feet six, more or less. Ryan threw the lid back. Hagans' attitude changed like a shock. His face assumed an ashen hue, his whole figure trembled, tottered and collapsed. The Inspector had fainted. Ryan in the meantime had also gazed into the box, and his face also borrowed a peculiar look. But he didn't faint. He simply murmured, half audjbly, "My God, a corpse!" Everybody rushed to the case then. Sure enough, it was a corpse. It had evidently been a man at one time, but now it was little more than a thing of skin and bones, brown of color, ghastly in appearance. Hagans was soon revived, but wouldn't go near the box for a bushel of dollars. The corpse was an embalmed body, which had been shipped from Victoria for burial in this city. Its sudden appearance caused a peculiar story to circulate in business quarters. It was said that a Chinese, anxious to evade the Restriction Act, had been shipped down to San Francisco in a box. He had, however, been so clumsily packed that he had died on the passage. When the box was being sent ashore it broke, and out rolled the dead Chinaman, to the horror of the beholders. This story caused a small army of reporters to visit the Mexico, but as the sequel showed, it was nothing but a corpse—a poor inoffensive corpse, which must have grinned a ghastly grin in its bandages at the trouble it had caused.

One of the finest of the steamers chartered by the Canadian Pacific arrived yesterday from Victoria B. C. This is the Aberdeen, owned by George Thomson & Co., of Glasgow. She is a remarkably fine looking iron vessel, bark-rigged and fitted with triple expansion engines of 2700 effective horse power. The Aberdeen was built on the Clyde by R. Napin & Sons. The largest cargo of tea that everentered London was earried by this steamer and amounted to 6130 tons. She also took to Vancouver, B. C., the largest cargo that everentered that port, measuring 3425 tons and containing besides other goods. 54,494 packages of tea. The Aberdeen is commanded by Captain Taylor. The run from Yokohama to Vancouver was made in 14 days 7 hours. On her arrival here the steamer was placed in quarantine for three days, Hongkong being considered an infected port. The officers feel sore over this, as the vessel laid a week in Vancouver and has a clean bill of health from that port. Besides some 1200 tons of cargo and two white passengers, there are on board 427 Chinese, 277 of whom have certificates and 150 guarantee letters. Among the latter are eight women. Curiously enough, the women are the first to arrive here since last Christmas, when a check was placed on their importation by the indicting of two procuresses by the United States Grand Jury. The importer, a male named Wong Ah Hong, is now serving a ten-years sentence in San Quentin for his complisity in the importation of women.

Fred Nelson when helping to discharge the hay scow Andrew Jackson, at Mission No. 2 yesterday, fell overboard and would certainly have been drowned but for the timely aid of Calvin Hanks, a longshoreman, who jumped in and saved him as he was disappearing from sight. It took nearly twenty minutes to bring Nelson round.

The steamer Columbia, from Portland, brought down forty-six passengers yesterday. The Mexico, from P

On the steamship Belgic, which sailed yesterday afternoon for Japan and China, there went as passengers Bishop C. H. Fowler, of the Methodist Church, accompanied by his wife and son; Bishop A. W. Wilson and wife, Baron Richard Poche, Baron Marwitz. Dr. Lai Po Tai, C. W. Horn and wife, J. N. Dithmar, John Markhoe and family and several others.

A longshoreman named W. H. Gonley was fished out of the bay early yesterday morning by Officers McGreevy and Donahue and taken to the Receiving Hospital. Gonley says that an attempt was made to shanghai him, but he escaped by jumping out of the boat. Opinions are divided as to whether Gonley was drunk or sober at the time, and but little credence is given to his tale of shanghaeing. About the same time, E. K. Block, a recent arrival from the East, walked over from Jackson-street wharf and was rescued just in time to save his life.
