Students Who Won Laurels at Berkeley.

OVER A HUNDRED HONORED.

The University's Twenty-Fifth Commencement.

GREAT CROWD IN HARMON HALL.

Regents, Faculty and Visiting Professors Attend the Interesting Exercises.

Honors were distributed yesterday to ninety-five undergraduates at the University of California.

It was a great day at Berkeley. The State University laid its laurels upon the brows of the young men and women who have labored in the field of learning and won advancement during the year, and the twenty-fifth commencement was attended by as many people as could crowd into Harmon gymnasium.

Fair hands had gayly bedecked the circular auditorium, and strings, flags and flowers were everywhere tastefully ranged. On the stage a bank of choice floral beauties lay at the feet of the successful aspirants as they received their degrees, and from the balcony hung profuse evergreen decorations.

The exercises took place in the afternoon, which was a departure from the rule which has obtained in former years. Heretofore the forenoon was devoted to "commencement" proper and in the afternoon there was a luncheon. The afternoon plan necessitated the elimination of the lunch part of the programme altogether.

The highest honors were carried off by Harry Manville Wright, who besides being given a degree of bachelor of arts was also presented the university medal as the most distinguished graduate of the year and received a commission to be colonel.

For some years past the medals have not been accorded, but this year they were very close competition for it, between young Wright and Miss Mary Hawes Gilmore. This young lady comes from San Pedro, and has the highest scholastic record of the institute. She was a very close second in the medal race.

The programme of exercises was as follows: Overture, "La Chant du Poete"..... Hermann Meyer..... "Cant and Culture"..... "The Religion Which a University May Properly Embrace"..... "Spring Session of the Mendocino Thesis"..... "The Theory of Democracy and Representative Government"..... "The Paradox of Self-culture"..... "Italian Serenade"..... "The Reading of A. W. Sapp's 'Analysis of the Steel Framework of a Modern High Building'"..... "The Degree of Bachelor of Arts upon Charles Louis Bienenbach, A. B.; Mary Bird Claves, A. B.; Ernest Horton Henderson, A. B.; Oliver Bridges Hendewar, A. B.; John Slater Partridge, A. B."

The degree of master of science upon Samuel Jackson Holmes, B. S.; Leon Mendez Solomons, B. S.

The degree of '93-'94 was then called and given their degrees as follows: Degree of bachelor of arts upon Alfred Bunn, Joseph Charles Myrland, Frederick Denker, Alfred Newman, McCoy Fitzgerald, Elizabeth Sutter, George Gosinsky, Maurice Victor Samuel, John Theodore Handaker, Sheffield Shumway Sanborn, Lalla Fowler Harris, Edwin Louis Sheppard, Ernest Norton Henderson, Ph. B., Anita Day Symmes, Edgar Milton Leventritt, Oscar Nettleton Taylor, Robert Lewis Annis Louise Tindall, Harry Manville Wright.

The degree of bachelor of letters upon Russ Avery, Wilfred Sutherland Bancroft, Loring Barker, Frank Shaeffer Boggs, Bertha Boncher, Janet Bruce, Jesse Dickinson, Barks, Ph. B., Frank Leonard Carpenter, Maida Castellino, Edith Martin Claves, Jabus Clement, Frances Louise Deane, William Denman, Annie Lucy Dolman, Miles Bull Fisher, Jonathan Moore Gilmore, Mary Hawes Gilmore, Mabel Gray, Stanley Harper Jackson, Cora Knight, Roberta Tomlin Lloyd, Ariana Moore, Arthur Howard Rington, Florence Agnes Smith, Oscar Sutter, Hugh Fitz Randolph Vail, Henry Allan West, Edwin Milton Wilder, Emanuel Myron Wolf.

The degree of bachelor of philosophy upon Charles Arthur Allen, Ida Helen Ballard, Frances Evans Boggs, George Henry Bok, Cecilia Clara Byrne, Laura Daniel, Herman Hall Eddy, Edward Presley Foltz, Annie Cecilia Haeckel, Henry Chester Hyde, William Dunbar Jewett, Sophia Day Isaac, Hattie E. Leszyusky, Marguerite H. E. Meyer, Blanchette Selvidge Jr., Helen Olive Thayer, Frank Milton Todd, Myrtle Walker, Benjamin Wood. The degree of bachelor of science upon Frank Wills Hancock, Frederick Theodore Bolelett, Robert E. Brewer, Charles Coleman, Henry Stevens Easton, Ernest Ingle Dyer, Stanley Alexander Easton, Joseph Fife, Ray Edson Gibson, Louis Eliezer Gooding, Henry Hay, Edward Franklin Henderson, Fred Manning Miller, Julia Morgan, Arthur

GAY GREENEWALD

The Gambler Is Intimate With Whalley.

LOANED THE SMUGGLER COIN

His Damaging Admission on the Witness-Stand.

CLOSE OF THE EMERALD TRIAL.

Attorney Garter and Agent Phenix Swear They Are Not Working at Cross Purposes.

The trial of the Emerald smugglers practically ended yesterday afternoon. All the witnesses have been examined, and the attorneys will give their reasons for and against the conviction of the accused to-day.

Mensing, the mate of the Emerald, who promised to go on the stand and exculpate himself, failed to keep his word. Greenewald, another member of the ring, was questioned yesterday, and confessed the jury that he is in urgent need of a physician for his memory, which exhibits alarming symptoms of premature decay.

All that Greenewald could not remember about his connection with the ring would make an interesting volume. The defense battled with varying success to exclude testimony tending to establish a connection between the Halcyon and Emerald rings.

The two knights—Samuel, the Assistant United States Attorney, and George A., the principal attorney for the defense—were the chief warriors in the struggle, and their efforts brought to a close a factious remark about the mental condition of a man who is between two knights.

George A. poked fun at Garter on account of an unfortunate allusion made by the United States Attorney to the birth of the case, and argued that it was unfair to make use of the evil deeds of Whalley, the Halcyon smuggler, who, like Voss and Svenson, had been permitted to escape in the prosecutions of the defendants.

Greenewald was questioned as to his relations with Wichman, and admitted that he had been speaking terms with the accused candy-maker, but denied that he had any financial transactions with him. Greenewald subsequently modified this statement, and confessed that he had given him the note in Honolulu. Greenewald said that he went to Honolulu from Victoria in 1891, and that he had the health of the vessel on which he sailed nor the name of the captain.

"Was it the Halcyon?" Attorney Knight asked. "No, it was not." Greenewald testified that he returned to this city in April, 1891, and had his picture taken in Chinese costume with Whalley and McLean at Honolulu.

Greenewald was asked how he obtained his living and candidly confessed that he was a gambler. He declared that he did not know Captains Voss and Svenson and was not acquainted with either of them. "What did you do with the $1000 you say you brought down from Victoria?" Greenewald hesitated, but upon being assured by his attorney that he might safely answer the question replied that he loaned it to Whalley.

"Did Whalley ever pay the money back?" "He never did." "Did you not sail from Honolulu to this city as 'Charles Nichol'?" Greenewald declared that he did nothing of the kind.

"Were you ever interested in landing Chinese or opium from the Emerald?" "No, sir, never." "Where were you during August, 1893?" "In this city."

"Where were you on the 7th, 8th and 9th of that month?" "I don't know."

Here the defense rested, and John T. Foley was called in rebuttal. Foley is a Custom-house officer. He testified that he knew Greenewald, and that Greenewald had given him the note in Honolulu. Greenewald said that he saw Greenewald in the store. He saw him there the next day and on the 6th. After leaving the candy-store on the last occasion Greenewald went to Chinatown and disappeared on Washington street, near Dupont. At 4 o'clock of that day McLean, Greenewald, Wichman and Voss went to an attorney's office.

Foley, a few days later, saw Greenewald in Chinatown at Leo Sio's shop. He was with Joseph, another member of the ring, who is now in Victoria. After parting from Joseph, Greenewald went to Wichman's. On several other occasions in the same month Foley saw Greenewald at Wichman's, yet Greenewald or the other had not remembered one of these instances.

"You report to your special officer that Charles Joslyn was here?" Garter asked. "I did." "Why did you not shadow him?" "I was not told to shadow him."

"You knew that he was suspected of connection with the ring?" "I did, but I was acting under instructions."

"Are you not afraid to tell the truth because of the conflict between Mr. Garter and Mr. Phenix? Do you not fear that if you tell what will please one you will offend the other?" "A Attorney Garter arose before the witness could answer, and, with right hand uplifted, swore that there was no conflict between him and Phenix, and Phenix made basic to declare that there was no conflict between him and Garter. The latter objected to the question asked the witness and the objection was sustained. After this episode no evidence of importance was given and the examination of witnesses closed.

The fitness of things is happily illustrated in the name of Mr. Chinook Whiskers of Oregon.

Today's announcement beats all our previous achievements, and that means a good deal.

We know the verdict. Since the name of this town was changed from Yerba Buena to San Francisco no such values have charmed the public.
