

REOPENING OF ROUDELL COFFEE SHOP SATURDAY WILL BE FEATURED BY DINNER OF UNUSUAL QUALITY

The re-opening of the Roudell Coffee shop tomorrow evening will mark a triumph over adverse conditions worthy of note. Fire swiftly made a ruin of the beautiful little restaurant and within an hour B. J. Della Valle and Tom Roussell, owners of the shop, were in consultation with Wilson Brothers, owners of the building, preparing plans for rebuilding. From that moment on restless activity has dominated the scene.

In the light of the brief but successful history of the Roudell Coffee shop which opened its doors last November 23rd little introduction of proprietors is necessary. Santa Cruz as a whole became thoroughly acquainted with those gentlemen and the popularity of the eating place increased steadily under their clever management and as many of their customers willingly agree because of clean, courteous service and excellently cooked food.

In planning the new Roudell Coffee shop amid its smoldering ruins both partners were vehement in their demand for more commodious quarters. The experience of four months had taught them that the growing trade must be accommodated and provision for more and more people made.

In view of this the new Roudell Coffee shop was lengthened twenty-four feet, modern dressing rooms were added, the seating capacity of the dining room increased, and room made for much additional equipment in the kitchen.

New steam tables were added to provide for the proper handling of larger quantities of cooked food.

The dining room had always won the favorable comment of the public, but the new scheme of decorations will evoke much more enthusiasm than did their predecessors.

With soft, pleasing duo-tone effects achieved by the use of darker panels against a softened background and a floor rendered remarkably pleasant to the feet by the use of heaviest hatched linoleum the semi-privacy of the French gray booths is given a distinctive appeal.

For tomorrow evening's opening dinner the firm has announced a special menu and arrangements have been made to care for a record crowd.

Among the merchants of the city the firm of Della Valle & Roussell has won a host of friends who at this time wish them well in the second opening of the Roudell Coffee shop.

The congregation is very happy to be in its own home, which is a particularly attractive building both outside and inside. COMMONS IN UPROAR IN LABOR DEBATE

LONDON, May 6.—(P)—Sneers and peers from the labor back benches punctuated Premier Baldwin's speech in the house of commons yesterday in justification of the trades union bill, and at one point in the debate he was passed, with prime minister as the target.

As one reason for the government's sponsoring the bill, which seeks to prevent general strikes, and strikes of a coercive nature, Baldwin maintained that in some unions the power was gradually getting into the hands of what is called minority movements. This brought labor interruptions from several quarters. There were cries of "withdraw," and John Beckett, member for Gateshead, sprang to his feet and, pointing at the premier, shouted, "Admit you are a liar!"

In a moment the house was in an uproar. Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, immediately moved that Beckett be suspended, and the motion being carried, the speaker ordered suspension for five days, and Beckett left the building. As to the government's mandate for the bill, Premier Baldwin explained that it was last year's general strike. But he had made no endeavor to press a bill of the kind immediately afterward, although he felt it would have been perfectly easy to force through any legislation. "The chances were that then it would have been an extreme and vindictive kind."

PRISONERS STRIKE FOR LESS HOURS OF LABOR

RALEIGH, N. C., May 6.—(P)—National guard troops were ordered today to Halifax county prison farm where 400 white prisoners were reported striking for shorter working hours.

Former Manager of Cliff House Dies Paying Taxes

SAN FRANCISCO, May 6.—(P)—James A. Wilkins, who made a fortune in the Alaska gold rush, dropped dead in the customs house here yesterday as he was paying an installment on his income tax. Before going to Alaska, Wilkins was owner of the Portola-Loyola cafe here and manager of the famous Cliff House during the height of its popularity. As a member of the Alaskan firm of Sullivan & Wilkins, Wilkins owned a half interest in the No. 1 Grass Gulch mine, later sold for about $1,000,000. Returning here, he speculated in real estate, and left an estate estimated at $500,000.

[The News' Special Service] BOULDER CREEK, May 6.—The office of the Isaiah Hartman company of Boulder Creek announces the leasing for a term of years of the old Middleton Store property on the corner of Main and Circle streets, Boulder Creek, to Jack Griffen, a well known garage man, who will specialize in the sale of Standard Oil products. The ground has been broken; materials are on the site and construction under way for a thoroughly modern up-to-the-minute service station. "Man With $1,000 Bill" Is Caught

OAKLAND, Calif., May 6.—(P)—Police here yesterday announced capture of "the man with the $1000 bill," whose operations have worried hotel clerks up and down the Pacific coast for several months. The prisoner was booked as G. W. Ogden, but the authorities said he had a long list of aliases.

The swindler's method of operation was to register at a hotel, and later to ask the clerk to change a $1000 bill. If the change could not be obtained, the man would borrow $20 or $30, "for the evening," and then leave. The man arrested here today has asked for $1000 in change at a local hotel. He was taken to San Francisco, where several hotels recently were victimized.

Citizens of Green county, Kentucky, have organized to prevent demolition of the Greensburg courthouse, oldest in the state, in favor of a modern structure.
